1. When your team submits a video stand-up, who needs to be in it?   `1 / 1 point`

- ◉ It's up to you; you can have one person or multiple.
- ○ Everyone on the team
- ○ Only your chosen team leader

✓ Correct
Some teams rotate who presents from week to week, others pick a single presenter, and others have everyone take turns in a video. They're all okay.

---

2. When video stand-ups are posted, how many videos should you post a comment on?   `1 / 1 point`

- ○ 1
- ◉ 2
- ○ 3

✓ Correct
Everyone in class should comment on 2 other team's videos by Saturday of standup week.

---

3. On the week a standup is due, what are the correct due dates for your standup and responses?   `1 / 1 point`

- ○ Both are due on Saturday.
- ○ Standup videos must be posted on Wednesday. Responses must be posted by the next Wednesday.
- ◉ Standup videos must be posted on Wednesday. Responses must posted by Saturday.

✓ Correct
After your standup is posted on Wednesday, you have 3 days to respond to at least 2 other team's videos. We don't accept any late responses on standups so please be on time!

4. If you have a question, where should you ask it?   `1 / 1 point`

- ○ Direct message your designated instructor contact.
- ◉ If it is generally useful, in the main course Slack channel. If it is specific to your project, in the private channel we will make for your team.
- ○ Your private team channel

✓ Correct

---

5. What is the required length of your blog?   `1 / 1 point`

- ○ 10 pages maximum, 12 point font.
- ◉ There is no required length. You should take the space it requires to meet your project objectives.
- ○ 20 pages maximum, 12 point font.

✓ Correct

---

6. Can you get credit for a late video standup?   `1 / 1 point`

- ◉ No, this assignment is graded at the end of day Saturday. Nothing after that will be counted.
- ○ Yes.

✓ Correct
See the syllabus for details. Stand-ups don't offer any partial credit for late submission.

7. What format should your final blog be submitted in?

1 / 1 point

- ⦿ It is up to you as long as we can read it.

- ◯ PDF

- ◯ A Medium blog post

⊘ Correct
It can be a document or a published blog on a platform like Medium. We do not require blogs to be published, but we strongly encourage it.

8. Do you need to include your dataset in your project's GitHub repository?

1 / 1 point

- ⦿ No.

- ◯ Yes.

⊘ Correct
Some datasets are too private or will not fit. If this is the case, we recommend describing your dataset or providing a "dummy" version with a few lines of fake data in the appropriate schema.

9. Can you use code other people have written in aspects of your project?

1 / 1 point

- ⦿ Yes, but you must credit it somewhere.

- ◯ Under no circumstances can you reuse any code.

⊘ Correct
It's normal to re-use code that people have published online- data scientists build on one another's work! You must clearly identify what work is original, though.
